

Providing Relief for Thirsty Working Animals

&lt;&lt;First Name>>, you may recall Animal Aid Abroad recently commenced a new project, Water for Working Animals, which involved funding the construction of a bore and water troughs to ensure rescued, working and street animals in Nepal and India have access to fresh water in the brutal summer heat.

We received an update from Animal Nepal last week, stating that a bore and pump have now been installed at their new shelter in Nepalgunj. This 90-foot-deep bore, coupled with water troughs also funded by AAA, will deliver fresh water to many thirsty animals. In addition, Friendicoes, one of our partner groups in India, have nearly finished building two essential water troughs funded by AAA.

Trees for Animals a Fantastic Success

AAA recently held two very successful tree-planting days on the 19th of June and 3rd of July in Perth, Western Australia. The first aim of these events was to revegetate areas burnt out by fire, create wildlife habitat and improve local water quality.

The second aim of the tree-planting days was to fundraise for shady trees and food crops for working animals in drought-affected Africa, along with crucial water troughs for animals in Africa, India and Nepal.

All in all, an incredible total of 5,100 trees were planted and $24,416 was raised for working animals!

Working Camels Benefit from Free Veterinary Care

Help in Suffering's Camel Rescue Centre (CRC) is one of AAA's partner groups in India. They provide free veterinary treatment for working camels, both at their centre in Bassi and in their mobile clinics.

In May, the CRC treated 402 camels for conditions including colic, dental disease, worm infestations and wounds. Two interesting cases stood out, including a camel with a fistula (hole) beneath his right eye and another camel suffering from severe colic.

It is thanks to our donors that the CRC vets can continue to alleviate suffering for so many working animals.

Reaching More Working Donkeys in Zimbabwe

Matabeleland Animal Rescue and Equine Sanctuary (MARES), AAA's partner group in Zimbabwe, have started a new education and outreach program in west Matabeleland, including the towns of Mabale, Dete, Victoria Falls and Jembwe.

The team visited Mabale in June to carry out a preliminary outreach training and harness distribution workshop. The workshop included education on donkey welfare, proper harnessing and loading carts. Padded, humane harness sets were issued to 10 families and donkey carts and yokes were repaired or altered as necessary. Any donkeys with injuries were treated by the veterinarian.

Donkey owners in Mabale were enthusiastic about MARES' new outreach and education program and were very eager to learn.
